Dual careers - A corporate issue

International companies and organisations need skilled, mobile staff to support global operations

- Numbers are small, but essential (av. 1% of manpower)
- More women in employment
- More dual career couples / dual earners
- Diversity - more nationalities, unmarried or same-sex partners

For 70% of partners, their own employment prospects are an important factor in the decision to relocate

Affects men and women of all nationalities working in private and public sectors worldwide

Challenges for mobile partners who want to work

- Look for a new job in unfamiliar location
- Timing dictated by employee's move
- Adapt skills to local employment market
- Learn language, different culture etc.
- Compete with well qualified local staff
- Foreign diplomas recognised?
- Persuade potential employer to apply for work permit and wait until obtained...

Work permit procedures and uncertainty

– a structural hurdle for partner and employer

*Key messages for governments

- Work permit restrictions have a negative impact on international business.
- Work permit restrictions for partners seriously impact on employees' willingness to transfer.
- Countries that allow partners to work are more attractive destinations for international business and highly skilled staff.
- Allowing partners to work has positive economic and social impacts.

*Key messages for employers

- Lack of partner employment opportunities adversely affects global mobility of highly skilled international employees.
- Dual careers are becoming more important.
- Employers should do more to support.

Impact of immigration restrictions on international business

Employers say:

- 96% - Important to be able transfer employees internationally.
- 92% - Work permit limits on expat numbers have negative effect on business.
- 85% - Time limits or bans on work permit extensions have a negative effect on business.
- 96% - Partners of international assignees should be allowed to work in the host country for the duration of the assignment.

“More and more couples today expect to pursue employment abroad.”

Partner employment falls during assignments

- 89% of spouses were working before expatriation.
- This fell to 35% during expatriation.
- 75% of those not working would like to work.

Impact of partner work permit restrictions on mobility

Destinations

Countries that enable spouses and partners to work are attractive destinations for 96% respondents

Would you go to a location where it is difficult to get a work permit?

58% unlikely to relocate to a country where it is difficult for a spouse or partner to get a work permit.

Working has a positive impact on adjustment, family relationships and well-being in the host country

68-80% of working spouses say that working has a positive impact.....

55-73% of working spouses say working has a positive impact.....

24-41% of non-working spouses report a negative impact of not working

Dual careers are becoming more important to organisations

66% HR mobility managers say that dual careers and partner issues are becoming more important in their organisation

70% say their company should do more to support

“Dual career and partner issues are becoming more important in my organisation for the new generation of expats. A strong global mobility policy is not a nice to have but a need to have.”

Why employers have a dual career policy

“When the spouse is happy, there is a stronger likelihood of a successful assignment.”

“Most of our expats come from countries where a dual career is the most common family setting. We have to recognise that in our policy to meet society’s expectations.”

Success highlights

Over 30 countries now allow spouses or partners to work for any employer or be self-employed

European Union

Member States allow recognised family members to work freely, under EU Blue Card, EU intra-corporate transfer (fully implemented 2019), or other national schemes.

- Partner recognition growing. Children of working age allowed to work too.
- Belgium and Ireland (CSEP Holders) added to “best practice” category 2019.

USA

Spouses of intra-company transfers & treaty traders (L/E visas), eligible for employment authorization (EAD) since 2001.

Trump administration proposal to rescind H4 EAD withdrawn in January 2021.

- Currently lengthy processing times for spousal employment access
- Same-sex marriage recognised; unmarried partners not yet recognised.

India

Spouses of Employment visa holders can apply locally for E visa. (1st step recognition.) Lobby on-going for full work authorisation. Met key government ministers in 2015,17,19. Permits Foundation supported proposal for a specific ICT visa - implemented in 2018.

Brazil

Government decree on the legal status of foreigners effected in 2016 included clause that the partners of temporary work visa holders can work in Brazil.

Japan

Under highly skilled worker scheme 2012, the work permit requirements for professional spouses slightly relaxed.

Best practice model:

Spouse/partner has 'open' permission to work

Advantages

- Full access to employment market once resident visa or permit is issued.
- Facilitates temporary project work, self-employment, tele-working.
- Reduced bureaucracy for the authorities.
- Helps employers fill urgent or temporary vacancies.
- Attractive destination for mobile families.
- Attractive investment climate for employers with highly skilled international staff.

Permits strategy

- Provide evidence, promote best practice, build on examples of success
- Focus on countries that are:
 - important to business/international organisations
 - role models - trend setters in their region
- Global organisation with local support networks

WELCOME TO PERMITS FOUNDATION

We are an independent, not-for-profit organisation campaigning globally to improve work permit regulations to make it easier for partners of expatriate staff to gain employment during an international assignment.

Since our start-up in 2001, we have been progressively successful in influencing change throughout the European Union, as well as in the USA and Asia (Hong Kong, India, Japan and Malaysia). Almost 30 countries now allow accompanying spouses or partners to work. We continue to promote best practice and monitor legislative improvements in all these countries, as well as setting up new projects (for example, in Brazil and Indonesia) in our global campaign.

Our surveys show that governments that allow partners to work attract highly skilled employees associated with international business, investment and development; creating a 'triple win' for host countries, employers and families alike.
